

Year: 2000

Location: Japan

Program: House

Naked House

Four freely movable room-boxes on casters in one unique two-storey high room allow three generations of one family to flexibly share a common life as well as individual activities. Diffusing natural light, the two main parallel walls are comprised of two layers of corrugated plastic laid perpendicularly on the outside, an insulation filling of polyethylene strings in clear bubble wrap bags, and a nylon fabric membrane that is velcroed on to the structure on the inside.